

This architectural rendering depicts a modern sports complex. In the foreground, a basketball court with a green floor is enclosed by a high, grey metal fence. To the left of the basketball court, there is a small, white, tent-like structure on a green patch of grass. A red running track curves around the perimeter of the sports area. In the background, a large stadium with a distinctive, wavy, dark roof is visible. The stadium's facade features large glass panels and structural columns. The overall design is clean and functional, emphasizing the integration of different sports facilities within a single complex.
